

BUILDING HOPE

Every Child. Every Family. Every Future.

A Capital Campaign for Peninsula Behavioral Health's
Youth and Family Services Center

A MESSAGE FROM OUR CEO

Building a Healthier Future for Our Children

Every child deserves the opportunity to heal, grow, and thrive. At Peninsula Behavioral Health, we see every day how timely, compassionate behavioral health care can change the trajectory of a child's life and strengthen an entire family.

For more than 55 years, Peninsula Behavioral Health has responded to the evolving needs of our community. Today, the need for behavioral health services among children and adolescents continues to grow. Our current youth facility has reached its capacity and can no longer support the level of care our community needs. Families deserve a space designed specifically for children and young people.

The Youth and Family Services Center represents our commitment to the next generation. This purpose-built facility will expand access to early intervention, family-centered behavioral health care, autism evaluation and support services, and evidence-based treatment. Just as importantly, it will create a welcoming place where children feel safe, families feel supported, and healing can begin.

This project is about much more than constructing a new building. It is about investing in children earlier, strengthening families, and building a healthier future for Clallam County.

Thank you for believing in this vision and in the children and families we are privileged to serve.

Wendy Sisk
Chief Executive Officer, Peninsula Behavioral Health

WHY NOW?

The need for youth behavioral health care is growing and our current space can no longer keep pace.

Peninsula Behavioral Health has outgrown its current youth clinic, a renovated commercial space with only 10 clinical offices and limited room for specialized therapies, group services, and family-centered care.

Our community is asking for more. In Peninsula Behavioral Health's 2025 Community Needs Assessment survey, residents identified expanded youth and family behavioral health services and additional Autism Spectrum Disorder support services as community priorities. At the same time, the number of children and adolescents served by Peninsula Behavioral Health increased from 735 to 893 in just one fiscal year—a 21% increase.

More children and families are reaching out for help. We need the space and specialized resources to meet them with the care they deserve.

THE VISION

The new Youth and Family Services Center will be a 15,096-square-foot, three-story facility purpose-built for children, adolescents, and families.

It will include 22 therapy offices, family counseling rooms, play therapy, Parent-Child Interaction Therapy (PCIT), Autism Spectrum Disorder evaluation and support services, group rooms, community space, and therapeutic outdoor areas.

Designed for Healing

The building is intentionally designed to create a welcoming experience. The first floor includes reception, waiting, library, play room, community room, kitchen, and family gathering spaces. Upper floors provide specialized therapy rooms, group spaces, staff collaboration areas, and family meeting rooms.

The new center will include:

- 22 private therapy offices
- Four group therapy rooms
- Family therapy room
- Play therapy room
- Sensory therapy room
- Art therapy room
- Community gathering space with warming kitchen
- Outdoor therapeutic play area and half-court basketball court
- Conference and training rooms for staff and community partners

South Elevation

Every space has been intentionally designed to create a welcoming, trauma-informed environment where children and families feel safe, respected, and supported.

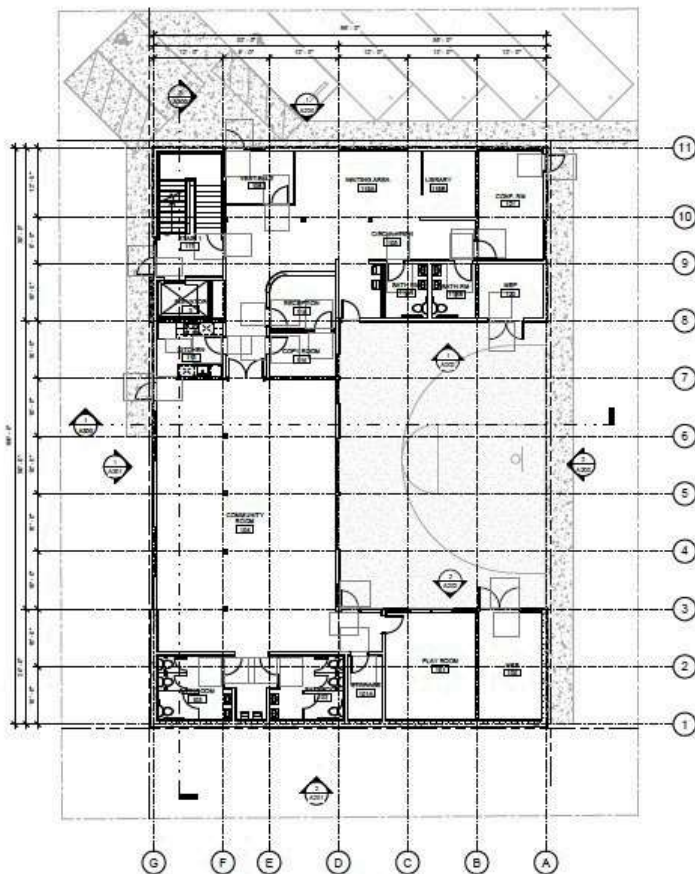

DESIGNED AROUND FAMILIES

The Youth and Family Services Center will allow Peninsula Behavioral Health to expand:

- Individual, family, and group counseling
- Youth substance use disorder treatment
- Autism Spectrum Disorder evaluation and support services
- Suicide prevention and early intervention programs
- School and community partnerships
- Crisis response and stabilization services
- Evening and expanded-hour appointments
- Family education and caregiver support

- Community room
- Children's playroom
- Library
- Kitchen
- Conference room
- Family restrooms
- Administrative support space
- Outdoor half-court basketball area
- Interactive outdoor therapy spaces

COMMUNITY IMPACT

The Youth and Family Services Center will create greater access to care for children and families across rural Clallam County. By expanding clinical capacity, the Center will help reduce wait times, increase access to early intervention, expand autism evaluation and support services, and provide more opportunities for individual, family, and group-based care.

The Youth and Family Services Center will also strengthen coordination among families, schools, healthcare providers, and community partners, helping children receive the right support earlier and closer to home. Earlier access to care can strengthen families, support success at school, and help prevent behavioral health needs from escalating into crises.

BUILDING FOR THE FUTURE

For more than 55 years, Peninsula Behavioral Health, a nonprofit 501(c)(3) organization, has evolved alongside the changing needs of our community. As the largest behavioral health provider in Clallam County, Peninsula Behavioral Health serves more than 4,000 people annually and continues to invest in the services, facilities, and partnerships needed to strengthen behavioral health care across our region.

Recent milestones include the opening of North View, a 36-unit Permanent Supportive Housing community. Looking ahead, Peninsula Behavioral Health was selected as one of only two Washington organizations participating in the Certified Community Behavioral Health Clinic (CCBHC) Learning Collaboration, with implementation beginning January 1, 2027.

The Youth and Family Services Center represents the next step in that commitment—building the capacity and infrastructure needed to ensure children and families have access to high-quality behavioral health care for generations to come.

CAMPAIGN INVESTMENT

An $11.4 Million Investment in Our Children

The Youth and Family Services Center represents an $11.4 million investment in the future of children and families across Clallam County. Construction is anticipated to begin in mid-2027, with the Center expected to open in late 2028.

Peninsula Behavioral Health is pursuing a diverse funding strategy that includes foundations, businesses, individual donors, and other philanthropic partners. With significant constraints on Washington State's budget and limited public capital funding available, private philanthropy is more important than ever to bringing this vision to life.

Philanthropic investments will help support construction, furnishings, technology, therapeutic environments, specialized clinical spaces, and the resources needed to create a facility designed specifically for children and families.

THE DIFFERENCE YOUR INVESTMENT WILL MAKE

A Place Where Hope Can Begin Earlier

Peninsula Behavioral Health is a nonprofit community behavioral health organization serving children, adults, and families throughout Clallam County. Since 1971, PBH has worked to ensure our community has access to high-quality, compassionate behavioral health care, regardless of an individual's ability to pay.

The Youth and Family Services Center is ultimately about what happens inside its walls. It is about reaching children earlier, giving families the support they need, and creating opportunities for healing before behavioral health challenges become crises.

An investment in the Youth and Family Services Center will help create a future where more children and families can access specialized behavioral health care close to home regardless of income or ability to pay.

Your investment will help:

- Reach children earlier through timely intervention
- Expand access to individual and family therapy
- Increase autism evaluation and support services
- Provide dedicated spaces for play therapy and PCIT
- Give families greater access to coordinated care
- Reduce barriers for rural and underserved families
- Create spaces where children feel safe, welcomed, and understood

West Elevation

We aren't simply building more space. We're creating more opportunities for children to heal, families to find support, and hope to begin.

A COMMUNITY INVESTMENT

Building Hope, Together

The Youth and Family Services Center is a community investment—one that will strengthen children, families, schools, healthcare, and the behavioral health system throughout Clallam County.

Peninsula Behavioral Health's work is strengthened by relationships with schools, healthcare providers, Tribal partners, local governments, businesses, foundations, civic organizations, and community members. These partnerships help identify needs, connect families to care, and create a stronger network of support for children and adolescents.

The Youth and Family Services Center will build on these relationships, creating new opportunities for collaboration and helping ensure children and families receive coordinated support throughout their behavioral health journey.

A Legacy for Generations

A gift to the Youth and Family Services Center is more than an investment in a building. It is an investment in the future of Clallam County.

Together, we are building a place our community's children and families can depend on for generations.
